By LIZZIE MCDERMOTT
News Correspondent

WILMINGTON — At a Planning Board Meeting on Oct. 2, Ben Osgood, site plan engineer representing Bettering LLC, presented an updated plan for the Rehabilitation facility at 362 Middlesex Ave. In so doing, Osgood fielded a wide array of questions, both from the Planning Board and from concerned residents.

“We’ve made a lot of progress with this plan,” said Osgood.

Osgood opened with a presentation of the updated plan. The roadway is still a 32 foot long cul de sac and the pavement now has a center island, as the fire department wanted a mountable curb.

Chalifour named new community liaison officer

By CASSIA BURNS
News Correspondent

WILMINGTON — Last month, Paul Chalifour was named the new community liaison officer at the Wilmington Police Department.

Chalifour, a lifelong resident of Wilmington, is a 32-year veteran of the Wilmington Police Department. With the department, he has been a part of several notable cases.

Some include the life-saving resuscitation of a man who collapsed in Dollar Tree last March, and the pursuit of an armed man at the Wilmington MBTA Commuter Rail station back in 2015.

In addition to his work on key cases with the police department, Chalifour has had great success in promoting both the history of the Wilmington Police Department, as well as the Town of Wilmington in general.

In 2009, he compiled and edited a history of the Wilmington Police Department that can be found on the department’s website. Alongside Officer Eric Palmer, he compiled a collection of historical documents and artifacts pertaining to the police department that was on display at the police station.

He also published a book with Arcadia Publishing and History Press entitled

Images of America: Wilmington, featuring over 200 photographs depicting the evolution of Wilmington throughout history from a rural landscape into the growing suburb it is today.

Chalifour is also responsible for aiding in the reformation of the Wilmington Police Honor Guard, also alongside Officer Eric Palmer. The new Honor Guard made its first appearance on Memorial Day 2016, and serves at official department functions, parades, and funerals.

As the Community Liaison Officer, Chalifour’s responsibilities will consist of coordinating the police department’s public outreach programs and organizing activities with businesses, community groups, and residents.

Chalifour’s appointment to the position was announced on the Wilmington Police Department’s Facebook page on Sept. 19.

Joe Schneider gears up for Nov. 6 election

By LIZZY HILL
News Correspondent

BEVERLY — On Nov. 6, Joe Schneider takes on incumbent Seth Moulton in the race for Massachusetts’ 6th Congressional district. Schneider and Moulton ran unopposed in their respective parties in the primary election on Sept. 4, which means that this is the first time that either will face two opponents in this election — as Independent Mary Jean Charbonneau will also be on the ballot.

Schneider boasts that he is not a politician with his 30 years of business experience. In addition to what he’s learned serving as director for multiple companies, he’s confident that his entrepreneurial experience has been preparing him for this influential political role. Over the years, he’s built a number of companies and even sold one to a division of General Motors.

“I had a fairly active and successful life as an entrepreneur and problem-solver,” he said.

He wrote in a Facebook statement he vows to create solutions and not to simply promote partisan causes.

While now a Beverly resident, the Republican candidate was born in communist Romania and immigrated to the United States at 12 years old. It was after he became a U.S. citizen that he attended the United States Military Academy — West Point and served in Special Forces (Green Berets).

“After active duty, I went to Harvard Business School for my MBA and spent a year at [Harvard’s] Kennedy School of Government,” he shared.

He also earned his master’s degree from the University of Southern California — but it’s the values he learned at West Point that he brings into his campaign.

Schneider stated that he’s running on a campaign of honesty, integrity, and courage amidst today’s political

Wilmington man arrested for assault

By CASSIA BURNS
News Correspondent

WILMINGTON — On Wednesday, Oct. 3, Torrey Smith, age 39, of Wilmington was arrested by Billerica Police on charges of assault.

The arrest corresponds to an alleged assault on Aug. 22 of this past summer. During this assault, Smith is reported to have broken into the home of an ex-girlfriend. He then physically assaulted her and a male acquaintance with a wooden crucifix measuring about 6 to 8 inches tall and 3 to 4 inches wide, causing significant tissue damage to the acquaintance's nose.

Since fleeing the scene of the assault, Smith has been highly sought after by authorities for the past few months.

Smith was arrested at about 2:30 a.m. at a traffic stop on Boston Road by Officer Rafael Mendez. He was a passenger in the car, and he initially gave police a fake name. However, Officer Mendez has been involved with the case since the assault in August, and he questioned whether the vehicle's passenger could be Smith. After Smith provided him with the false identification, the officer was able to confirm his true identity.

Smith was arrested on the warrants and booked at the Billerica Police Department.

The charges against him include breaking and entering during the daytime, kidnapping, assault and battery with a dangerous weapon, vandalism, witness intimidation, and mayhem. In particular, the mayhem charge refers to instances of assault that involve attempts to disfigure, cripple or mutilate a part of the body. Smith was arraigned on Thursday, Oct. 4, 2018 in Lowell District Court.

THE EARNED INCOME TAX CREDIT AND HOW IT BENEFITS TAXPAYERS

The earned income tax credit is a benefit for working people with low and moderate incomes. To qualify, taxpayers must meet certain requirements and file a tax return, even if they don't owe any tax or aren't required to file. Here are some things taxpayers should know about the EITC:

It's Important to Review Eligibility

Taxpayers who worked and earned less than $53,930 may qualify.

Filers should review EITC eligibility rules if their household income or family situation has changed. They may qualify for EITC this year, even if they didn't in the past.

Taxpayers must file a federal income tax return claiming the credit. This is true even if a taxpayer isn't otherwise required to file a tax return.

History:

Dudley, we hardly knew ye (literally)

By LARZ F. NEILSON

Anyone in Wilmington who knew Dudley Buck will be quite surprised when they read the story of the “other” Dudley Buck.

Dr. Buck was a scientist and inventor at MIT and chairman of the Wilmington School Committee. When he died, at age 32 in 1959, the cause of death was listed as viral pneumonia.

A newly released book, “The Cryotron Files” reveals the side of Dr. Dudley Buck that his neighbors never knew. It is a well-researched story of Cold War intrigue that explores the possibility that he was murdered.

Dr. Buck, a native of California, moved to Wilmington in November 1950. People knew him as a Boy Scout leader, and a member of the Methodist Church. Elected to the Wilmington School Committee, he built a strong math and science program in the high school. On Boy Scout camping trips, he was known for telling the scariest ghost stories.

He possessed great enthusiasm, education and experience and was able to see the potential uses for technology. He was best known for inventing the cryotron, a tiny electronic device that could reduce the size of computers from room size to matchbox size. While it never became widely used, it was of great interest in the electronics community of the mid-50s. A widely shown picture showed the cryotron, a tiny squiggle of two wires on the palm of his hand. While it could only operate at temperatures approaching Absolute Zero, the cryotron was a critical step in the development of small computers, and placed Buck in the leaders in that field.

That was the public side of Dudley Buck. “The Cryotron Files,” fills in the details of an amazing man, scientist, inventor and spy. Written by Ian Dey and Dudley’s son Douglas Buck, it explores Buck’s education and career. Douglas was able to access his father’s files, which revealed some of the work that Dudley had been doing in the early stages of the Cold War.

Concerned that many bright young men were being lost to battle, the U.S. Navy in 1943 initiated a program known as V-12, to provide college training for young men. Dudley Buck graduated from the V-12 program in July 1947.

His subsequent naval career linked him with some of the top cryptologists and code-breakers from World War II. There was a strong push for building computers, and Buck worked with some of the top people in that field. The U.S. was in a technology race with the Soviet Union. Advances in electronics would provide great military advantage.

The post-war era saw a tremendous race to capture German technology and win over the scientists who built it. Buck was sent to Germany as a civilian on a diplomatic passport. Before leaving, he told his sister that if anyone asked, he was on an extended camping trip. He was, the book says, for the time being, a spy.

He worked under Reinhard Gehlen, who had led a German intelligence team monitoring the Russians. In 1950, Gehlen was running intelligence under the 7821 Composite Group, a covert CIA organization. There was captured equipment to analyze, a job that would have been in Buck’s realm of expertise.

Buck was sent to woo a German gadget designer, Konrad Zuse. As an enthusiastic young computer expert, Buck was able to lure Zuse with tales of equipment and laboratory staff available in the West. He could also see some of Zuse’s equipment.

Buck started work at MIT in July 1950. Of his many inventions, the one of greatest lasting value was content-addressable memory, which allowed computers to search to search out key data from vast files of information.

The development of the cryotron propelled him to international fame. It attracted attention from military officials concerned with missile technology. Buck was brought onto the advisory board of the National Security Agency, so secret that it was nicknamed No Such Agency.

Buck was in great health and was never sick. In May 1959, he received a box of much-awaited organic chemicals in the laboratory. He apparently opened one of the bottles and touched the contents. That evening, he left the laboratory in a stupor, went home and became horribly ill. His wife called the doctor, and he was taken to Winchester Hospital, where he died two days later.

No autopsy was performed. The cause of death was said to be viral pneumonia. Coincidentally, a fellow member of the NSA advisory board died the same day under mysterious circumstances. Louis Ridenour was 47 and had just been made a vice president of Lockheed.

In 1975, Douglas Buck began searching for information about his father. He met MIT president James Killian, who told him, “Your father invented everything.”

Protect transgender rights, vote yes on 3

To the editor, Massachusetts has always been a leader in the nation. The United States looks to our state as a model for progressivism, especially when it comes to civil rights. We were, after all, the first state to acknowledge and legalize the right for same sex couples to marry. The landscape of Massachusetts is dependent on the upholding of civil liberties. This November, one such liberty is in danger.

In 2016, at the urging of civic, business and community leaders throughout the Commonwealth, the Massachusetts legislature passed — with a bipartisan, supermajority vote — the historic nondiscrimination protections for transgender people in public places. When Governor Charlie Baker signed the bill in July 2016, it was a major victory for our state.

Specifically, for the transgender community, this law made them feel heard, accepted and safe in the Commonwealth. It showed the rest of the nation that Massachusetts is a state that treats its citizens equally with dignity and respect, regardless of their gender identity.

Shortly after it went into effect in October 2016, a small group of opponents gathered the minimum number of signatures required to place the law on the ballot for repeal in November 2018. Rolling back these protections would completely change the landscape of our state, and ultimately, our country. If we decide to vote no and repeal protections for transgender individuals in Massachusetts, the message we send to the rest of the nation is that it isn't important to treat transgender people with dignity and respect.

Massachusetts is the first state in the nation where transgender protections will be up for a vote on a statewide ballot measure. Currently, Massachusetts is among 19 states and more than 250 municipalities with nondiscrimination protections for transgender people in public places.

The anti-transgender activists making the case for the no vote are using scare tactics to try to convince the public that the safety of women and children is in jeopardy by protecting transgender people from discrimination and harassment in public spaces, particularly restrooms. That just isn't true.

Since the law was implemented two years ago, there has been no increase in safety incidents in restrooms. Safety in restrooms is important to all of us — including transgender people. Harassing people in public facilities remains illegal and those who commit crimes are prosecuted, as they should be. The law protecting transgender people from discrimination hasn't changed that. That's why the state's leading safety officials — including the Massachusetts Chiefs of Police Association and the Massachusetts Coalition Against Sexual Assault and Domestic Violence — support this law.

Additionally, a report out of the Williams Institute at UCLA Law School examined restroom crime reports in Massachusetts cities and found no increase in crime and no difference between cities that had adopted transgender policies and those that had not.

For most citizens in Massachusetts, this law does not affect them one way or another. But for the people that it does affect, it means the world. Please vote Yes on 3 in November to uphold transgender protections.

We hope you consider publishing an editorial in support of this important ballot initiative. Please let me know if you have any questions.

Seniors prepare to tackle application process

By MATT FRONDUTO

If last year's graduating class serves as any indication, the majority of graduates from the TMHS senior class will be attending college next fall, but attendance does not come without a steep cost.

Yes, I know what you're thinking: "Of course college is expensive, this is nothing new."

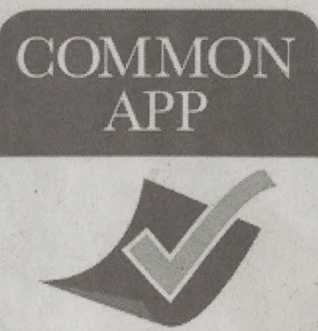

And while this is fair, the cost to which I refer is not financial, but rather comes in the currency of time and effort, both of which students are forced to pour into the long, arduous application process, just to be eligible to attend a university.

Often times, the stress students face eventually forces their brains into whirlwinds of deadlines, assignments, SAT scores, and other overwhelming aspects of the application process, which is why it can be extremely important to remember that as long as one keeps track of his/her progress, the process can be a piece of cake.

The first, and often most difficult step, is choosing which colleges you want to apply, and how many you should feasibly apply to. Of course, this is a very personalized process, but one important tip that applies generally, is that it is crucial to not undersell yourself, and do not avoid applying to certain schools just because of a fear of rejection.

Similarly, try not to avoid schools offer several thousands of dollars in need-based financial aid.

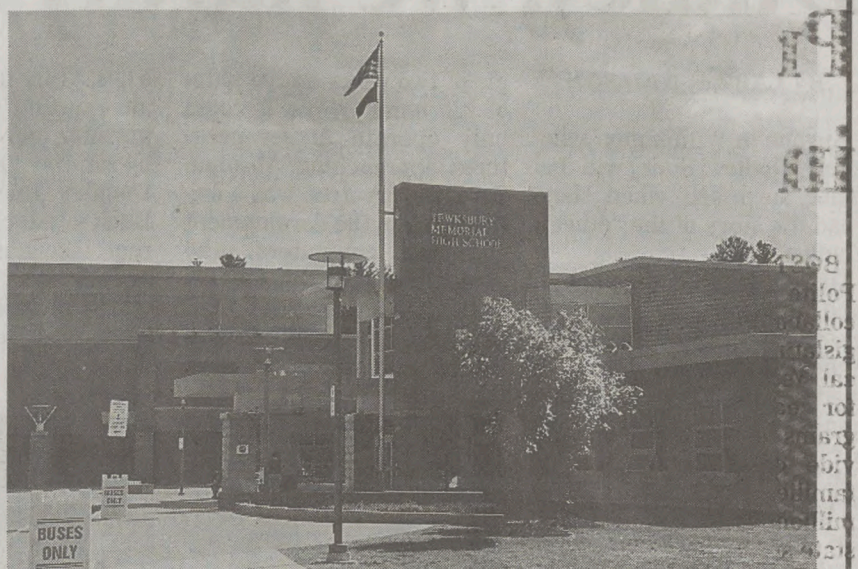

Take Boston College for example, a school that is quite expensive on the surface, but yearly dishes out tens of millions of dollars in financial aid. Keep in mind, if a college or university wants a student badly enough, they will not allow money to impede him/her.

As for the application itself, consult your teachers, and do not underestimate the value of their input and criticism. These are teachers who have helped hundreds of high school students work their way into the colleges of their choice, so believe them when they tell you that they do know what they are doing. Equally as valuable as your teachers can be your guidance counselors, who have been specially trained to assist in this very process, so suffice to say, their help should not be underestimated.

As far as the application process itself, there really is not much more that a fellow senior can say, other than to keep organized and don't let yourself get overwhelmed in over your head. Other than that, as long as you fill out the necessary requirements within the set deadlines, there should be few hiccups en route to your trip to college.

Cassella right for job of Register of Deeds

To the editors:

I am writing to enthusiastically endorse the candidacy of Karen M. Cassella for the position of Register of Deeds for the Northern District of Middlesex County in the Nov. 6 election.

Most voters are unsure of this department of state government and its functions until they have a need to convey their property, file a discharge of their mortgage after it is paid off, or just to check on their deed or the boundaries of their house lot. The Register of Deeds for the Northern District supervises and looks after these services for all citizens in the Lowell area.

Her experience makes her uniquely qualified for the position of Register of Deeds.

Karen has been employed at the Registry of Deeds for 26 years, and has always been pledged to serving the public in that capacity by providing guidance, answering inquiries and assisting those in need of direction in matters of real estate. This has always been her first priority.

Karen is married to James D. Cassella, a 22-year veteran police officer of the City of Lowell. They have four children. For nine years, Karen has been employed in a second part-time job in order to insure that their children are able to attend college.

Karen's family is noted for its commitment to public service. Her extended family includes two lieutenants with the Lowell Fire Department and a lieutenant with the Tyngsboro Police Department. Karen has a number of initiatives that she will implement if she is elected. She would institute a free seminar for residents who want to learn how to navigate the computer system at the Registry of Deeds. She will begin a lawyer-of-the-day program that would allow citizens to obtain real time advice regarding real estate difficulties.

Karen believes that cross training employees of the Registry would go a long way towards insuring that all of them would be able to perform each and every task called for to efficiently operate the office.

Karen will bring a fresh, new perspective to the position of Register of Deeds for the Northern District. Her election would commence a new day and an inspired future for the Registry.

It is for these reasons that I encourage voters to join me in casting their vote for Karen for Register of Deeds for the Northern District in the Nov. 6 election.

Lyons will fight for retired residents of 18th Essex

Dear neighbors:

Jim Lyons will continue to fight for us, the hard working and retired residents of the 18th Essex District. As a small businessman, father and friend, Jim puts the tax payer first.

His opponent supports open borders, while being lenient on criminals. She supports the welfare state instead of focusing on letting the taxpayers take home more of their hard-earned wages. If she is elected, she will ultimately cause financial harm to the working and retired people of the district by increasing taxes overall.

Jim entered politics later in life; he is not a career politician and he supports small business, judicial reform, and always puts working and retired families first.

Please join me in voting for Jim Lyons on Nov. 6. Jim is our voice in the statehouse.

Columbus Day: separating fact vs. fiction

To the editor,

For much of its history, the United States considered Columbus a man worthy of admiration. Columbus Day is one of America's oldest patriotic holidays, first celebrated in the 18th century. America has more monuments to Columbus than any other nation in the world.

There has been much debate of late regarding changing Columbus Day to Indigenous People's Day. I am not opposed to an Indigenous People's Day, just NOT on Columbus Day! In fact, there is already a Native American Heritage Day typically celebrated the day after Thanksgiving.

In addition, November is National American Indian Heritage Month. It is important to recognize different cultures and their contributions to our society. The Italian-American community has long considered Columbus one of their own, and celebrate his contributions during the month of October, which is Italian American Heritage Month.

The Commission for Social Justice (CSJ), the anti-defamation arm of the Order Sons and Daughters of Italy, has conducted research on Columbus and has determined the following:

FICTION: Columbus didn't discover America.

FACT: In every significant way, he did. Even if others visited the continent sporadically before he did, their voyages had no historical significance. Columbus' voyages, however, marked the end of thousands of years of isolation between the Western Hemisphere and the rest of the world. The recorded history of the Americas and the Caribbean starts with Columbus.

FICTION: Columbus was a slave trader.

FACT: Columbus never owned any slaves or brought any to the Western Hemisphere from Africa. On his return to Hispaniola in November 1493, he learned that all his men had been massacred by another Taino tribe. Columbus and his men fought these Indians, capturing about 2,000 and in 1495, sent 500 of these prisoners of war to Spain to be sold as slaves, as was the custom in 15th century Europe.

FICTION: Columbus was a racist.

FACT: No evidence indicates that Columbus thought the islanders he met were racially inferior in any way.

FICTION: Columbus committed genocide.

FACT: Columbus made four voyages to the Caribbean in a twelve-year period (1492-1504), spending from only seven months to two years and nine months. It is inconceivable that he could have killed millions of people in so short a time. In fact, most of the native populations perished because they lacked immunity to such diseases as small pox that they caught from the Spanish explorers.

FICTION: Columbus destroyed the balance between man and nature.

FACT: Columbus and the other Europeans brought with them Old World agricultural techniques, including crop rotation and animal breeding. They also introduced new tools (including the wheel) as well as new plants and domesticated animals, including the horse.

FICTION: Columbus stole the natives' land.

FACT: A sad fact of human civilization is that powerful nations usurp the land of the vanquished. The Spanish conquistadors who followed Columbus in the 16th and 17th centuries were establishing an empire through military conquest.

Columbus Day recognizes the achievements of a great Renaissance explorer who founded the first permanent European settlement in the New World. His arrival in 1492 marks the beginning of recorded history in America and opened relations between the Americas and the rest of the world. Columbus Day celebrates the beginning of cultural exchange between America and Europe, and is one of our oldest holidays.

Sincerely,
Michele Caira Nortonen

Early Education and Care Programs to receive $20M in rate increases in FY19

BOSTON — The Baker-Polito Administration, in collaboration with the Legislature, announced a Fiscal Year 2019 rate increase for early education programs and systems that provide care for low-income families, worth a total of $20 million. With this increase, state-subsidized early education and care providers have received rate increases worth nearly $100 million during the past four years.

The Board of Early Education and Care voted this afternoon to approve a 4.58 percent increase that will support teacher salaries, benefits, and professional development at center-based early education and care programs and family child care systems that enroll children funded by the Department of Early Education and Care (EEC), in order to improve educator hiring and retention.

The new rate increase is on top of the eight percent increase for state-subsidized early education and care providers in FY 2018, which was the largest rate hike in more than a decade. The funding for the 4.58 percent increase to the daily reimbursement rate was made possible through an appropriation in the fiscal year 2019 state budget.

The daily reimbursement rate for state-subsidized center-based child care programs and family child care system administrators will increase for all age groups and regions of the state, and will be retroactive to July 1, 2018.

"We are extremely proud of our work with the Legislatures over the past few years to provide historic rate increases to early education providers that will benefit thousands of young children," said Governor Charlie Baker. "The investments we've worked together to provide will enhance learning environments and help early education and care programs improve their quality through professional development and retention efforts."

"We are pleased to have worked with our colleagues in the Legislature to provide this significant rate increase, so that our early education and care providers will be able to ensure they can retain highly-qualified teachers that help our youngest learners grow and be ready for school," said Lt. Governor Karyn Polito.

"Early education and care is a priority for the House, and this year we spearheaded another $20 million increase to support our dedicated early education workforce, as well as initiatives to increase quality programs and expand support for early childhood mental health efforts," said House Speaker Robert A. DeLeo. "This investment will help to build stronger families, support safe and nurturing environments for young children and prepare them for success in the classroom and beyond."

"One of the most important investments we can make as a Commonwealth is in our youngest children and their caregivers." Early educators and child care providers do the important work of setting our youngest children up for resiliency and success, and we must support them in doing so," Senate President Karen Spilka said. "The Senate has long prioritized investing in quality education for everyone, from birth through adulthood, and so I am pleased to see these increases come through."

"This additional increase builds on the historic investment in our early educators, which will help stabilize the workforce, ensure programs can pay good teachers more, and build on other quality initiatives," Education Secretary James Peyser said.

"This rate increase will enhance the capacity of programs that care for some of the highest needs children in the Commonwealth by providing quality environments and settings that foster children's learning and healthy development," said Early Education and Care Commissioner Tom Weber.

The rate increase passed today supports progress toward EEC's goal to have the subsidized rate in all regions of the state be comparable to at least 75 percent of the local private market rate for the same type of care. EEC is also committed to ensuring continued access to child care subsidies during FY 2019.

Currently, EEC subsidizes the enrollment of approximately 55,000 children each day in high-quality early education and care programs across the state. EEC's subsidies allow families who are low-income or in-need of assistance to access high-quality care at minimal or no-cost to them.

We seem to be obsessed with disinfecting everything from door handles to our own skin, but does it make sense to disinfect the mouth when we understand that the human body is 90% bacteria? What simple, at home activities can help grow good bacteria in the mouth that can prevent disease? Come learn everything you didn't think you wanted to know about the bacteria that call your mouth their home, and how to

Join the party at Ogunquitfest in Maine

By HEATHER BURNS
News Correspondent

Just one hour north of the Merrimack Valley area is the beautiful seaside town of Ogunquit, Maine. Known for its picturesque harbor views, beautiful beaches, the scenic Marginal Way, and the quaint shops of Perkins Cove, it has become a popular summertime destination.

It may be getting a bit too cold for a dip off the Maine coast in the Atlantic, but Maine is now bursting with breathtaking fall colors. That makes the perfect backdrop to join the celebration of Ogunquitfest, taking place Oct. 19, 20, and 21.

First and foremost, it's time to get out and vote... for your favorite Fall Decorations in Ogunquit! Local businesses decorate and compete for the Best Scarecrow and Fall Display. Ballot boxes are located throughout the town until Oct. 21, when winners will be announced.

The Ogunquit Parks and Recreation Committee is presenting Trick or Treat Downtown on Friday, Oct. 19 from 5:30 to 7 p.m. Local businesses will be handing out treats to all the costumed trick or treaters. After trick or treating, stop in at the Leavitt Theatre, 259 Main St. in Ogunquit, for a viewing of the Disney movie, Coco. Admission is free for all trick or treaters and their parents.

The Main Street Beach parking lot will be the sight of the Autumn Bazaar. Held on Saturday, Oct. 20 from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m., and Sunday, Oct. 21 from 10 a.m. - 3 p.m. You will find one of a kind handmade items from over 75 vendors. There will also be activities and games for the kids.

The Dogtoberfest Beach Walk will also be at the Main Street Beach from 9:30 - 10:30 a.m. on Saturday. Socialize and walk the beach with other dogs and their owners, and enter to win great prizes. All dogs must be leashed.

The Antique and Classic Car Show will be on display at the Main Street Beach parking lot from 10 a.m. - 1 p.m. on Saturday. Vote for your favorite car, or enter your own classic car. Registration is $15.

The Great Pumpkin Patch Presentation is from 10:30 - 11:30 a.m. for kids of all ages. Pumpkins, paint, markers and sticker will be supplied, but no carving, please.

The Village Toy Funatic, 232 Main St., will be hosting a book signing from 11 a.m. - 2 p.m. Meet Paddington Bear Illustrator, R.W. Alley and Author Zoe B. Alley.

Who can eat Maine's favorite treat the fastest, and without their hands? Stop in at the Village School Playground on Cottage Street from 11:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. for the Whoopie Pie Eating Contest. Both children and adults can compete.

to win a prize. Free drinks will be provided to spectators by the Front Porch.

Tour the barn of the future

By PAIGE IMPINK
News Correspondent
paige@yourtowncrier.com

Great Brook Farm in Carlisle is one of our favorite places to visit. Less than 20 minutes away, the park is bordered by Billerica and Chelmsford and is easy to get to. Whether it is for the walking trails, biking, seeing the animals, or enjoying an ice cream, it is just a great place to spend a few hours in nature.

Great Brook State Park, a Massachusetts Department of Conservation and Recreation property, is also home to a working dairy farm. Leased by farmer Mark Duffy, the farm sits on 1,000 acres sold to the state by Farnam Smith in 1974 with the stipulation that it would be preserved as open space.

The farm has approximately 200 Holstein cows, a breed from the Netherlands known for their high milk production and ability to withstand the cold. We took a tour of the farm's Smart Barn on the day we visited, a free, 45-minute guided walk available each Sunday at 1, 3 and 5 p.m.

Our knowledgeable guide explained the history of the farm, showing us how the cows are separated by age, the cow maternity ward, young calves, and those not quite ready to be inseminated. It was explained that once the cows have their and grandparents snap precious memories.

It was amazing to learn that cows eat nearly 115 pounds of corn and hay each day along with 35 gallons of water. Of course, that means that about 100 pounds of manure is also produced, a commodity which the farm puts to good use out on its fields, and also ages and sells back to the community.

The silage (corn stores) and haylage (hay stores) organized in earthen bins. The silos at the farm are just decorative now, as our guide explained. The dust from traditional silos is unhealthy and far more storage is possible with the earthen bins.

The state of the art "smart barn" was the first in Massachusetts, built in 2011. It is designed to provide light and ventilation for the animals. A moving floor conveys the waste away from the animals, where it is shuttled to a holding tank below the floor. The cows have their choice of bedding, including cushiony mattresses or water beds with sawdust sprinkled on top. The animals are free to walk, rest and milk when they are ready, visiting the voluntary milking stations, machines that are from Denmark, once per day.

The machines milk 96 cows each day in about seven minutes a piece. The cow's teats are cleaned, and the robotic arm suction the milk while the cow enjoys a special snack mixture. The barn uses energy efficient lighting and is open to the nearly 4,000 gallons, is picked up every other day from Agrimark/Cabot Creamery. The farm is part of a cooperative which makes Cabot cheese, sour cream, and other dairy products. Some of the milk also is used by Bliss Dairy of Attleboro whose ice cream is sold at the farm in 60 flavors.

Take a tour of the Great Brook dairy operation sometime soon where you can appreciate the hard work of local farmers and see just where your food comes from.

outdoors, using an inflatable baffle system to raise "walls" when it gets cool outside, and employing a fan circulation system when the weather gets warm.

There is even a giant brush the cows can activate to clean their coats, not dissimilar from a car wash rotating brush.

The milk from the cows,

Cassella running for Register of Deeds for the Northern Middlesex County

LOWELL — Karen M. Cassella of Lowell is a candidate for Register of Deeds for the Northern District of Middlesex County in the Nov. 6 election. The District includes the Towns of Billerica, Carlisle, Chelmsford, Dracut, Dunstable, Tewksbury, Tyngsborough, Westford and Wilmington, and Cassella appears on the ballot in all of these municipalities as the Independent choice.

Cassella, 48, has been an integral part of of the Registry of Deeds workforce in Lowell for over 25 years, and is familiar with all of its departments. Her experience makes her uniquely qualified for the position she is seeking.

"In my typical work day," Cassella said, "I hear from many citizens that are seeking guidance in real estate matters involving deed recording, homestead declarations, mortgage discharges, and the examination of property lines. I enjoy serving these people by answering their inquiries and addressing their concerns."

Cassella is married to Lowell police officer James D. Cassella, and they have four children. For several years, she has been employed in a second part-time job in order to insure that their children are able to attend college. The Cassella family is noted for its commitment to public service. Her extended family includes two lieutenants with the Lowell Fire Department and a lieutenant with the Tyngsboro Police Department.

If elected, Cassella will institute a free seminar for residents who want to learn how to navigate the computer system at the Registry of Deeds. She will begin a lawyer-of-the-day program that would allow citizens to obtain real time advice regarding real estate difficulties.

Additionally, she believes that cross-training employees of the Registry would go a long way towards insuring that all of them will be able to perform each and every task called for to efficiently operate the office.

Cassella promises to bring a fresh, new perspective to the position of Register of Deeds for the Northern District, and she believes that her election will commence a new day and an inspired future for the Registry.

You can learn more about Karen Cassella at her social media site at Committeetoelectkarencassella.com.

Public Notices

Every day throughout the United States newspapers publish thousands of public notices about events, conditions or actions that affect countless individuals, families, neighborhoods and businesses. Public notices cover many topics including guardianships, conservatorships and protective orders, probating wills, business matters, liquor licensing, public auctions and sales, estates, zoning, public meetings, bids to sell goods and services to the government, auctions to dispose of surplus government equipment, local government finances and state and local elections. The public notice is a fundamental component of our system of representative democracy, which depends upon the participation of educated, responsible citizens.

Moulton speaks to area residents

Congressman Moulton was elected to Congress in 2014 on a platform of bringing new, bipartisan leadership to Congress. In his second term, Congressman Moulton is focused on economic growth for Massachusetts families and improving veterans' health care through the VA, where he still receives his care. Congressman Moulton serves on the House Armed Services Committee and the House Budget Committee in the 115th Congress. More than 100 people turned out to speak with Congressman Moulton on a recent Sunday afternoon in Tewksbury.

Republican ready to challenge Moulton

climate.

"The Republican party was built around the concept of liberty... dedicated to emancipation in an era where other political parties were reconciled to slavery."

Schneider believes that what this Congressional seat needs is a person of diversity, who's committed to represent the interests of the district even when it means allying with the other side.

He is ready to "say no to the status quo" by making a new way in the current political system, which he says is dysfunctional. Despite Congress having an approval rating of 11 percent, he says that its reelection rate is proof of extreme bias, holding a steady 95 percent. This is where he directly opposes the Democratic seatholder Seth Moulton, who Schneider insists has already had a fair chance to make change but has failed to do so.

In the midst of the "poison partisan arrows" he has received, he recalls Moulton's record as "a millstone hanging around his neck."

"The current seat occupant appears to be a highly partisan, integral part of the system, who cares more about the party and his career than his constituents," he continued.

According to Schneider, Moulton's biggest issue is in his fundraising from Political Action Committees, which are then able to influence his political activities.

Schneider has received funds for his campaign from only one PAC and the rest from the network of friends, family, business people, and classmates that he's created over the years.

"They know my values and what I stand for and they're supporting me. I owe my best efforts to the people of the district to give them a real choice."

While he knows intimately the work of his democratic opponent's campaign, asserting that his own campaign themes are being copied, Schneider doesn't know much of his independent competitor Charbonneau.

According to a September article interview for The Enterprise, Charbonneau is a former real estate broker and has held several local and state offices previously. She's also raised around $200 for her campaign and had spent none of it at the time the story was printed. That same article adds Moulton's campaign expenses up to $2 million and Schneider's to around $100k.

Cafe almost a year in the making

not there to talk about memory loss," she said. "We are simply providing a safe environment where you don't have to worry about the person acting out or walking out of a building."

The need for such a place is obvious. Experts report it. Pickett and her fellow staffers see it routinely. The memory loss patients and their caregivers stay home and become more and more isolated. The patients' behavior can be too unpredictable and being out in a public place can be too stressful for all involved.

In recent years, there has been a push to increase awareness of memory diseases and to help get these people out more. Memory cafes serve that purpose by providing a welcoming and safe place for everyone.

Caregivers have a monthly support group meeting at the town senior center. It was there that one participant said to Pickett, "I can get someone into my home to help, but I'd like to be able to do something with him." And so that became the goal, to have them come together and enjoy one another in an activity in a safe environment.

The café has been almost a year in the making. Town support was instrumental. The Fourth of July building use was a key element recently approved.

"It's a separate building; it's handicap accessible, and it's a small space," Pickett explained. "It is not overwhelming."

Community support has been a large part of this endeavor. For example, both Assisting Hands Home Care and WOW (We are One Willington) have been financial sponsors. Resident Lori Hayes, RN, will also be a part of the team at Our Moment Café. Hayes and Pickett have worked together on a number of programs dealing with Alzheimer's and Dementia, and Hayes is viewed as an important asset to the endeavor.

Beyond local support, the Department of Elderly Services also worked with the Massachusetts Memory Café organization at the Jewish Family and Children's Services in Waltham. Their Director of Alzheimer's/Related Disorders Family Support Program, Beth Soltzberg, assisted Pickett and the staff here. Soltzberg has been instrumental in helping to establish memory cafes throughout the state.

Young fan sings with Peter Noone & Herman's Hermits

(Eds. note: the following information comes courtesy of Wilmington resident Dorene Messieri)

My granddaughter Kelsi-Lynne Robarge has loved music since the age of two, her very first combination of words was "ice ice baby." My husband and I knew she's had music in her heart from the very beginning.

Kelsi has already been to seven shows in her six years. She's had the opportunity to see the Monkees 50th Anniversary, RAIN (Beatles Tribute), Peter & Paul (Peter, Paul & Mary), John Cafferty and the Beaver Brown Band, along with her Uncle Bruce's two bands Cold As Ice (Foreigner Tribute) and Shot of Poison (Poison Tribute).

Most recently, her big event was seeing Peter Noone & Herman's Hermits at Tupelo Hall in Derry, NH on Sept. 27, 2018.

Noone noticed Kelsi from the very beginning of the show commenting how young the fans were getting. He saw throughout the show not only the enjoyment Kelsi was getting, but that she knew a number of the songs he was performing. The time came for Henry the VIII which is one of Kelsi's favorites. Not only did she stand in front of the stage singing it word for word, Noone handed her the microphone for the last verse.

We couldn't have been more proud of the job she did, especially engaging the audience to participate. She ended the song with handing the microphone back to the stage and was applauded loudly by everyone in the audience.

Needless to say, we absolutely love the time we spend with our granddaughter and want to give her the happiness and enjoyment she deserves. Her Mimi and Hon are putting together our upcoming plans as to who Kelsi will be seeing next — her wish is to see Luke Bryan live. Our goal will be to help check that box to make her dream come true.

the local DJs from 1976 - 1996 at all the local schools and area functions, having our first big shot at the West Intermediate School. Dorene has been a resident of Wilmington since 1964 and loves being able to introduce Kelsi to all genres of music.

Town still discussing rehab plans

The size of the building has remained the same, though there is now a patio at the end of the building instead of being located in the back. The offset to the back property line from the parking lot is 20 feet, and there will be an eight foot stockade fence shielding the residential properties behind the site. The slope of the roadway is now a consistent 3.5 percent slope, and a dip previously located in the driveway has been graded around.

Another previous issue of concern was light pollution from the property. According to Osgood, there will be five overhead parking lights, and downcast wall mounted lights that shine directly at the ground rather than outward.

Many residents had questions regarding vehicular traffic, building construction, and the size of the facility. Other concerns included snow removal, and whether the cul de sac itself would be a public or private way.

Resident Kelly Richards asked Osgood to clarify the number of beds in the facility, and the frontage of the property. Osgood answered that the number of beds would remain at 48, and that two lots of 125 foot frontage each were combined for the project.

Richards also expressed concern that the plan and the facility name had changed, and that the developer hadn't answered the question directly.

"This has changed many times, and the reason why I'm asking is because, from meeting to meeting, the name of the facility has changed many times, and I'm asking today to see if it has changed again," said Richards.

Resident Rob Fasulo asked about a potential conflict between two laws in the zoning bylaw, and whether the town had been faced with bylaw conflicts before. Planning Board Chair Michael Sorrentino said that such conflicts come up regularly in "house-keeping" items at annual Town Meeting.

According to Director of Planning and Conservation Valerie Gingrich, the town subdivision regulations were written in 1975. She said that the town is currently working on an update to those regulations.

"We have a fairly decent draft internally, but this board has not seen it yet," said Gingrich. "I'm thinking, I hate to overpromise, but sometime in the next six months, let's say, we would hold a public hearing to go over revisions to (the subdivision regulations)."

The discussion will be continued at a meeting in November, due to ongoing issues with storm water management onsite. Osgood also stated that he would be sitting down with the town engineer in the interim to address other potential planning concerns.

In addition, updated plans will be distributed to each department.

Sen. Warren says yes on 1

BOSTON — Senator Elizabeth Warren has added her support to the list of individuals and organizations encouraging residents to vote YES on Question 1, The Patient Safety Act.

"Nurses work hard to take care of all of us when it matters the most, and we should do the same for them by establishing standards to ensure they have the help they need to do their job safely," said Senator Warren. "I stand with our nurses and support a yes vote on Question 1 in November."

"Senator Warren has been a longstanding advocate for nurses and her voice is a powerful addition to the scores of elected officials and advocates who have championed, 'Yes on 1,'" said Donna Kelly-Williams, RN, Cambridge Hospital Birth Center and President of the Massachusetts Nurses Association. "We're proud to have Senator Warren's support in this fight for patient safety."

Nationally, Senator Warren co-sponsored S.1063 - Nurse Staffing Standards for Hospital Patient Safety and Quality Care Act of 2017, which would, similar to Question 1, "require hospitals to implement and submit to the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) a staffing plan that complies with specified minimum nurse-to-patient ratios by unit. Hospitals must post a notice regarding nurse-to-patient ratios in each unit and maintain records of actual ratios for each shift in each unit."

The bill also outlined adjustments for Medicare payments to hospitals, protections for nurses who object to unsafe patient assignments, and stipends for nurse workforce loan repayment and scholarship programs.

Wildcats prevail in a must-win contest

Marino thanks his lucky stars

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

jamiepote@hotmail.com

WILMINGTON - When Peter Marino was told how many yards he had gained by this reporter, he smiled and said "Thank You."

Those two words is something he said a lot through his interview, and it all starts with thanking the big guys in front, who were all instrumental in his epic night of 249 rushing yards and three scores as part of Wilmington's 33-7 win over Watertown.

"It feels great hearing that but you have to credit the offensive line because without them, I wouldn't have been able to break those long runs," he said.

He was asked specifically about that offensive line group, making sure no one was left out.

"I want to credit all of the offensive line - (Karl) Saied, (Patrick) McAndrew, (Nicholas) Kullman, Tyler Thomas, (Jared) Venezia, Dean Nally - they all played great games. I have to thank all of them."

Just a few weeks ago, head coach Craig Turner and his staff were not happy with the play of the offensive line as a group, and also thought at the time that Marino could jump up a few more gears. Wilmington's offense sputtered a bit through the first four weeks of the season until exploding for 448 yards of offense in Friday's win.

"We weren't playing the greatest upfront (on the offensive line) at the start of the season and we are really playing pretty well right now," said Turner. "We really have the pieces plugged in the way we want them. We pushed that group a couple of weeks ago and we started to give some other kids some reps in practices. I thought that lit a nice fire underneath those guys and Peter has been spectacular ever since that."

"And that's how you want your senior captain to respond. He had some big, big runs for us tonight and they were all huge."

Turner went on to explain that during the weeks and games that he felt the offensive line was struggling, Marino was certainly getting challenged by the second-year coaching staff.

"I won't lie we have been tough on him. We think we can get more out of him and tonight he really brought it," said Turner.

And what was he really struggling with?

"He hasn't run away from anybody. Tonight he finally did and I said to him, 'you finally ran away from somebody and it was the fastest kid on their team'. I just that it's just about him getting settled in to what we are doing and it's different from what he is used too," said Turner.

Last year, Marino didn't carry the ball a single time and registered one catch for 18 yards. Through five games this season, he has rushed the ball 89 times for 561 yards with five touchdowns, while he also has five catches for an additional 104 yards giving him 665 all-purpose yards - Wilmington as a team has 1,126.

"Wow, that's good - (249 rushing yards) that's a big number. I think he only had like 320 coming into this game on the entire season, so we'll take that," said Turner.

But what they will both take even more is the victory.

"We came off the road from a tough loss to Melrose (last week)," Marino said. "This was a great win to bounce back, 33-7, and no points against us on defense. Our offensive line played great and without them, I wouldn't have been able to break those long runs."

In the first half, Marino took the ball 11 times and had rushes of 5, 18, 10, 17, 2, 1, 8, 1, 3, 4 and 1 yards. His combined 45 yards on three carries led to a Stephen Anthony TD catch. He then scored the team's second TD on a 3-yard run. Wilmington led 14-7 at the break but the lead could have easily been well extended to double digits.

"The first half we started off a little slow. I thought we could have put up a lot more points than we did. The second half we came out flying and that's all you can really ask for," said Marino.

In that second half, Marino took the ball eight times and had gains of 8, 9, 44, 62, 27, 14, 5 and 10 yards. His 44-yarder set up the Connor Benoit TD catch, before Marino reeled off the 62 and 10 yard touchdown runs.

On the night, he had nine first downs, he had eight carries of ten yards or more and he averaged 13.1 yards per carry. He didn't have a single carry go for zero or negative yards.

"We just kept pounding the ball, running the ball in the second half. We had a couple of passes mixed in and that's how we won this game, wearing them down," he said.

Wilmington is back in playoff picture

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

jamiepote@hotmail.com

WILMINGTON - Heading into last Friday night's home game against Watertown, the Wilmington High School Football team had rushed for 359 yards as a team through four games.

When the Wildcats walked off the field in celebration of the 33-7 victory, the team had 443 total yards of offense including 348 on the ground. Senior captain Peter Marino had a monster game with 249 rushing yards and three scores, but so many other players also had shining nights including QB Andrew Sullivan, while defensively Kyle Kenyon and Dean Nally were a dynamic wrecking crew.

While Marino, the offensive line and company got the job done offensively, Kenyon, Nally and others on the defensive side, the Wildcats still have a long way to go in order to first get into the playoffs, and make some noise. As well as the team played in certain areas, other areas they did not. The first half was not pretty, especially on special teams as the 'Cats gave 113 combined yards on two kick-off returns, including one going for a 72-yard score.

"We were definitely the better team," said Wildcat head coach Craig Turner. "We made some mistakes on special teams giving them a chance to hang in there. We didn't play our best in the first half, but we felt really comfortable that we would wear them down in the second half and run the ball."

This one was an absolute must-win for Wilmington. The 'Cats entered the game outside of the top-eight teams in the Division 4 North bracket, and now after improving to 3-2 on the season, have moved up to the No. 8 spot. If the season ended today, they would have a rematch with Gloucester, currently the No. 1 ranked team and undefeated.

Wilmington has two games left in the regular season, at Burlington on Friday, before coming home against an excellent Stoneham team, headed up by former WHS Coach Bob Almeida. Burlington improved to 4-1 overall with a 42-14 thumping over Wakefield and Stoneham is 5-0 and have outscored opponents by a 3-to-1 margin at 194-62.

"Hopefully this will get us back going in the right direction," said Turner. "We have a lot of teams in front of us. It's hard not to worry about that stuff with just two weeks left, but you want to get in. If we win next week or the week after, I think we need one more to get in, but you never know as crazy things can happen. It's tough."

"We told the kids that tonight was a must-win and we needed it because we really have a tough one next week. Burlington whacked Wakefield tonight (and we lost to Wakefield)."

On Friday night, both teams started out with three-and-out series. Wilmington's punt on fourth down was blocked and the Raiders had the ball on the 'Cats 29. Three plays and one yard later, Watertown faced fourth down, but Nally came in off the edge to sack QB Nick McDermott for a 7-yard loss and more importantly give the ball back to the 'Cats.

Nally and Kenyon both had three sacks on the night, while Wilmington also came up with three fumbles, one each by Kenyon, Jordan Olatilu and Reid Cote.

Wilmington got the ball back and six plays later, Sullivan connected with Stephen Anthony in the back of the end zone for a 5-yard TD strike. Adam Bishop went on and booted his first of five PAT kicks on the night making it 7-0.

Olatilu recovered his fumble on the 'Cats 24 yard line. Wilmington took over and moved the ball to the 32. Facing fourth-and-two, Turner rolled the dice and went for it as Sullivan gained five yards on a keeper play giving the team a first down. A deep 27-yard completion to Christian Robarge followed and four plays later, Marino rushed in his first of three scores, this one from three yards out making it 14-0 with 5:20 left in the half.

On the ensuing kick-off, the ball went out of bounds and it appeared as if the Raiders would have real good field position. Instead they elected to take the penalty, moving Wilmington back five yards to re-kick. That all happened and the ball went into the arms of David Manoukian, who went untouched for 72 yards for the touchdown. The kick was good and the lead was quickly cut in half at 14-7.

Wilmington followed by a productive drive moving the ball to the Watertown 11. Facing third-and-nine, Sullivan lofted a pass to his left and it was intercepted in the end zone and returned to the 21 yard line.

"It was a bad turnover down there," admitted Turner. "I'll give Sullivan all of the credit in the world because he has really taken care of the ball this season. When we have had turnovers in the passing game, it's because kids (on the other teams) have made great plays (to intercept the ball). He has really taken great care of the ball. He does what we want him to do and always want him to do, he settles the kids down and he runs the offense. We will take shots (down field) when we can."

"I thought he threw a nice ball down here on the sideline in the first half, and a real good slant on the touchdown pass. That's the stuff he's very comfortable doing and he's good at and we just need to continue to put him in those good spots. He makes good decisions with the ball ninety-five percent of the time."

"(After that interception) it's one of those things where I don't even talk to him when he comes to the sidelines because he knows that he made a mistake. I give him a little bit of time and I go over and just tell him that he forced that one. When things are there, he throws the ball away nine out of ten times. We will just chuck that one up as a tough decision."

Watertown was able to gain three first downs but ran out of time at the 'Cats 34 on a QB sack by Nally to end the half, still at 14-7. At that time, Watertown had 46 total yards of offense compared to 169 for the 'Cats, who only led by one score.

That all changed in the second half. Sullivan connected on a beautiful slant from six-yards out to Connor Benoit and that was followed by touchdowns runs of 62 and 10 yards from Marino to officially put the game away.

The 'Cats put together 274 yards of offense in the second half with Marino accounting for 179 of them. Sullivan ended the game completing 6-of-14 passes for 95 yards with a pair of TDs and a pair of picks.

Defensively, Kenyon and Nally had three sacks each, Jared Venezia had one, while the 'Cats had those three fumble recoveries.

"We are a good group on defense," said Turner. "My brother (Sean) does an awesome job with those guys, Between Dean (Nally) and Bailey (Smith) as an inside linebacker and then Kenyon who is just impossible to block. He is really, really tough. We can barely run defense in practice because no one can block him, it's just he makes every play. It's almost like 'can we take him out so we can get other kids who can actually see what's happening back there'? We do that a lot. He is every bit as advertised. He was equally as good last year. He has been excellent for us this year, he really has. He is a leader for us and he has taken on that role and has really been awesome with it."

"Defensively I think we have given up just nine points in the second half all season, that's kudos to my brother and his guys on defense. They do an awesome job."

Fourth annual Alonardo Memorial 5K Event a success once again

According to a number of authorities on the subject, the American running-and-racing boom, which peaked in 2013 with 19-million finishers, has dropped off considerably with some 3-million less tallied last year. Some locales, however, have gone against the grain and participation remains steady year-after-year.

The Town of Wilmington, for instance, continues to draw significant fields to a number of noteworthy events including the recent 14th Annual Wilmington Half-Marathon and 5K, the 5K Run for Recovery, the Kim Forte 5K Run/Walk, and this past Saturday, the 4th Annual Tony Alonardo 5K Road Race.

Last year, a rain-dampened event failed to deter more than 158 participants from completing this popular 5K, which is named in honor of Tony Alonardo, who was taken suddenly at the age of 49 in April, 2015. This year's 135 entrants were met by near-flawless running conditions, with bright sunshine and temps hovering in the low sixties.

According to Donna Alonardo, Tony's wife and the race director, more than $10,000 has been raised since the inception of the event; money distributed as scholarships to deserving Wilmington students.

"Proceeds from the race go to a Wilmington high school senior," she explained. "It isn't a requirement for the candidate to attend Wilmington High; they just need to be a resident of the town and have participated in a sport for at least one season. One year, we awarded the scholarship to a student who was a Wilmington resident but attended Arlington Catholic."

A large contingent of players from the UMass Boston women's hockey team was on hand to lend a hand and support the event. Tony's impact on area hockey was also abundantly evident.

"My oldest daughter was a member of the UMass Boston hockey team," Donna explained. For the last four years, many of her former teammates have made their way here to volunteer and cheer on finishing runners. Hockey was Tony's passion. He coached Wilmington Youth Hockey for decades and also coached the Wilmington High School girl's team for a year before his passing.

Stenciled on the T-shirts distributed as part of the race amenities was a special phrase which read, "What Can I Do; How Can I Help?" "That's how he lived his life," shared Donna. "We have a great group of friends who came forward soon after his passing with the idea for this fundraiser. It was a way for us to honor his legacy and share with the community."

During the first three years this race was held, Haverhill's Paul Scovotti had been a fixture, claiming the laurels in all three and establishing the course record of 18:57 in the 2015 inaugural running. With the absence of Scovotti this year, Brad Wagner of Melrose was first to cross the line adjacent to the Town Common in a new record time of 18:50.

"This was a fast, flat course and very scenic—there was a lot of nice foliage to look at along the way," said Wagner, 33, who explained he was partial to 5-milers and 10Ks and had just completed his first-ever 5K. "I shared the lead with the second place finisher until just before the one mile marker and then was alone the rest of the way."

Runner-up Jared Constantino, of Wilmington, improved on his third place finish of a year ago with a time of 21:05. Rounding out the top-3 was Luke Foley, who crossed in 22:14.

Tony Alonardo's 22-year-old daughter Michelle defended her title from last year, with a winning time of 22:47. While she fell seconds shy of improving on last year's 22:39, she did manage to finish fourth overall. Trailing Michelle in second was Eliza Dorsey (25:10) and Gina Jones, who took third (25:30).

"We have the best friends in the world in this Wilmington community," said Donna. "Tony loved volunteering in this town, he game of hockey. He taught respect and received their respect in return."

Constantino discovers a second place finish

Over the past several years, Wilmington's Jared Constantino has been consistent and persistent, steadily climbing higher with his finishes at the Annual Tony Alonardo 5K Road Race.

In the second edition held in 2016, Constantino crossed in 5th-place overall in this outstanding October event, which honors the memory of Wilmington hockey coach Tony Alonardo, who passed away four years ago, suddenly at 49.

In 2017, in his second attempt, Constantino improved considerably, moving up to 3rd-place. And finally, in this year's 4th Annual, staged last Saturday morning at the Wilmington Town Common, he was runner-up with a respectable time of 21:05. His personal record at the distance is 19:50.

"This course was pretty flat and fast, except for one small hill toward the end that adds a little challenge with about a half-mile to go," said Constantino, 35. "I'm very familiar with the route because I've run a number of races on it over the years, as well as use it for workouts."

Only Melrose's Brad Wagner, who won with a time of 18:50, separated Constantino from claiming the laurels for the first time.

"It took a little longer to loosen up because of the cooler weather today," Constantino said. "I wasn't really loose until I reached the one mile marker and by then, I had already lost contact with the guy in the lead."

Constantino, who typically trains between 30-35 miles per week with a long workout in the vicinity of 8-miles, has a unique perspective on racing and particularly the popular 5K.

"I've completed a lot of 5-milers and 10Ks in the past but I prefer the 5K distance," he explained. "In my opinion, the 5K is the toughest race if you're trying to be competitive. It's brief and there's little room for error. You can't have a bad mile because there's not enough time to make up for it. You have to run hard, the non-stop."

Constantino's running story is similar to that of many high school athletes who ran out of necessity for their specific sport and then returned to the roads later in life to gain or regain fitness.

"During my senior year at Wilmington High School, where I met my wife Melanie, I was the captain of the soccer team," said Constantino, who works in sales for an energy company affiliated with the MassSave Program. "I ran spring and winter track at the time but it was, more or less, just a means to stay fit for soccer. Into my twenties, I did very little fitness-wise and steadily put on weight. About four years ago, I decided to do something about it and started running again. I lost sixty pounds."

Constantino, who is the father of a two-year-old daughter, has a noteworthy distance running lineage.

"My father was a 4:27 miler in his day," he shared. "Until I lost all that excess weight in my twenties, I had no idea I shared his running pedigree. It was a great discovery."

Michelle finishes as top female runner again

A gloomy Saturday morning did not break the spirits of the family and friends of Tony Alonardo, as they held their fourth annual 5K Run/Walk in his honor.

Tony, who passed unexpectedly away in April of 2015, is remembered for his efforts in the Wilmington hockey community, was a big presence on the Ristuccia Arena ice as both a player and a coach.

Even over three years later, people who were close to Tony still want to keep his memory alive. "It's really helpful for us and our friends, and we are such a close knit community, so having something like this to celebrate his memory is awesome," said Michelle Alonardo, Tony's youngest daughter.

Michelle was the top female finisher in this race for the second consecutive year with a time of 22:47. Although it was about ten seconds off from last year's time, Michelle still had one goal in mind. "Everyone kept saying, 'Are you going to win?'" and I was like I don't know, but [I know I had to] do my best to make dad proud."

Alonardo, a recent graduate of St. Lawrence University, always played hockey, and although the game requires leg strength and speed, it doesn't necessarily require running. "I was never a runner, but [a race like this brings out] the competitiveness in me," Michelle said.

Like last year, the race started on the greens of the Town Common on Middlesex Avenue. Although the race still went through Wildwood Street and looped back around, Alonardo admits that she didn't prepare enough for the race. "It was a lot harder this year, I don't run as much as I did last year."

Once she crossed the finish line back at the common she was cheered on and met by family and friends and some members of the UMass-Dartmouth Girls Hockey Team, who her father and sister Sarah, had a strong connection with. "It was fun to run around town and see a lot of familiar faces along the way."

Proceeds from the race still go to scholarships in Tony's name to those who go through the Wilmington Youth Hockey Program.

After three seasons, Kelley resigns as Girls' Lacrosse Coach

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com

When Ashley Kelley took over as Wilmington High School Girls' Lacrosse head coach three years ago, she was almost completely new to coaching, having spent just one year as an assistant.

She may have been inexperienced when she joined the Wildcats in 2016, but now after her recent resignation, she leaves the program having gained not only great experience for herself, but also having shared her passion and knowledge of the sport she loves with numerous players who will carry the lessons she taught through the rest of their lives.

Kelley, a 2010 graduate of Wilmington High, and a three-sport athlete at the school and a four-year starter for the Wildcats Lacrosse team, is leaving her post in order to focus her energies on her future, namely the Physical Therapist Assistant Program at North Shore Community College. The involvement in that program would allow her very little time to commit to the team she has led for the past three years.

"It is a lot of work," Kelley said. "It will be a full-time commitment between working and going to school, so I will just not have the time to be coaching."

The decision in many ways was an easy one for Kelley, who graduated from the University of Rhode Island in 2014, as she is making a great commitment to the career she wants. But at the same time, it was not easy for her to walk away from the Wildcats.

"I am going to miss (coaching) a lot. I feel like there is still more I want to teach the team," Kelley said. I loved working with this team, especially the seniors who had been with me for four years (including the one season as JV coach). It was a great group of girls and we always enjoyed being together. They really meshed over the past four years."

And while the wins were not as plentiful as Kelley would have liked, with the Wildcats having compiled a 7-42 record during her tenure, including last season's winless campaign, it is the time spent with her players that Kelley will miss the most.

"I will miss the practice time," Kelley said. "It was always so great having the kids at practice every day. It was a time for all of us to have fun, but also to work hard."

Kelley did not anticipate coming back to coach at Wilmington High when she went off to URI, but after playing club lacrosse at the college level, she wanted to get back in the game in some capacity after graduation. Thankfully there was an assistant coach/JV coach position open on former head coach Sarah Simpson's staff, and Kelley jumped at it when given the chance.

"After college, I thought I was done with the sport, but I did not want to be done," Kelley said. "I also felt like I could teach the game to other players the way I had learned it. I was very fortunate that the position opened at the right time. I thought I would give it a try and I am really glad I did. I have a great passion for the mentors from her high school days, she was able to make the adjustment to the role.

"I learned a lot my first year about the responsibility and the hard work that was required to be the head coach. There were a lot of things I had never even thought of," Kelley said. "It was hard at times, but at the end of the day, as long as the kids were safe, played the game right and were having fun, I was going to be happy."

She knows she could not have done it without some guidance from more experienced coaches.

"The other coaches in the league were so helpful. A lot of them had been coaching for a long time in the league, so they taught me what to expect," Kelley said. "Also my former soccer coach Sue Hendee and my former basketball coach Jay Keane were great to talk to if I had questions."

As she prepares to leave, Kelley knows that better days are ahead for the program, as she has seen the improvement in her players over the past three years. While the program has struggled in its 11 years of existence, with former coaches Lois Nardo, Maura Kee and Sarah Simpson compiling a 27-95-3 in the eight years prior to Kelley's arrival and the overall record of the program sitting at 34-137-3 over the past 11 years, Kelley feels like they are close to turning the corner.

"My number one goal was to have them learn the game. We did not have to be the number one team, but I wanted them to learn the game," Kelley said. "And each year I think they really did learn more and more and they improved. It didn't always show up with our record, but each year they worked hard for me."

"Even this past season when we didn't win any games, we were in most of our games, and only lost most of them by a couple of goals, which was a big improvement from years past, so I could see us getting better."

One thing that is certain is that Kelley will be watching from afar and hoping that the results start to show up in the win column, while at the same time wishing she was on the sidelines with her players.

"I absolutely loved being there," Kelley said. "Having gone through the program myself, it was great to coach for Wilmington High. It was special because I had a relationship with the sport, the school and the town. I loved being a part of that and I am going to miss it."

sport, and I wanted to pass it on to other players."

According to Wilmington High Athletic Director Tim Alberts, Kelley did a commendable job of doing that for her players.

"Ashley did a great job and it was a pleasure to have her as part of the staff," Alberts said. "Ashley put a lot of work into her coaching and cared greatly for the girls. She will be missed."

Kelley admits that it was a little bit difficult her first year as head coach as she adjusted to all of the responsibilities that come with being a head coach. Thanks to some guidance from some of the veteran opposing coaches in the Middlesex League, as well as two of her

Tough week on the fields for field hockey and soccer teams

By JAMIE POTE

It was mostly a tough week for the Wilmington High School Boys' and Girls' soccer teams, as well as the Field Hockey team.

Starting with boys soccer, the Wildcats were defeated in all three games, falling to Winchester, 3-1, and then a pair of 3-0 losses to Arlington and Winchester. The 0-3 week puts the team at 2-7-3 overall.

In the loss to Winchester, Troy Rieskins gave the 'Cats a quick 1-0 lead with his goal coming just six minutes into the game on an assist from Owen Surrence. The Sachems tied it three minutes later, then scored two more in the second half to come away with the win.

Andrew Days made six saves before coming out for the final 20 minutes for Justin Healey, who stopped two shots. Pat O'Mahoney and Cam Martin played well defensively.

Wilmington has six games left -- and unless they finish in second place in the Middlesex League Freedom Division -- have to go 5-0-1 to qualify for the state tournament to finish the season with a 7-7-4 overall record, giving the team the necessary 18 points to qualify.

The WHS Girls Soccer team was defeated by Winchester, 5-1, Arlington, 1-0, and Lexington, 2-1. Friday's game with Arlington was held at the Yentile Field Complex.

In the loss to Lexington, Gina Mastroilli out home the lone goal on a header with an assist going to Alyssa Granara.

The 0-3 week puts the team at 5-5-2 overall. Wilmington will need at least six points in their last six games to qualify for the state tournament, or finish first or second in the league standings to qualify that route.

The 'Cats have five games left against Middlesex League Freedom Division opponents including Burlington, Wakefield, Stoneham and Watertown and in the first go-around, the 'Cats went 3-1-1 against those teams.

FIELD HOCKEY

The Wildcat Field Hockey team split two games, beating Arlington, 1-0, before falling to Lexington, 4-1 to put their overall record to 5-7-0. The team needs eight points in their final six games to qualify for the state tournament with games against Freedom Division foes Melrose, Burlington, Wakefield, Stoneham and Watertown, as well as a make-up game with Woburn with the date and time yet to be announced. The Wildcats went 3-2 against the five teams in their division in the first round of games.

In the win over Arlington, sophomore forward Chase Andersen scored in the first five minutes and the 'Cats hung on during the final 55 minutes to come away with the win.

Sophomore Johanna Robinson made four saves to record the shut out, while seniors Diana Riley, Molly Foley and Kacie Bourell all played well.

matches to get to the tournament.

Against the Spy Ponders, Wilmington played its best set in the first one, staying with Arlington for the most of the way before losing the game, 25-21.

Coach Bruce Shainwald's team did not respond well in the next two sets in trying to mount a rally. Arlington won by 13 in the second set and by 11 in the final set.

The Spy Ponders played great defense against the Wildcat middle and outside hitters, as Gabby Bond led the Wildcats with three kills, and Maeve Cadogan and Gianna Brunetto had two each.

Wilmington did have decent serving, and Bond had two service aces and Anna Rideout had one.

Rideout had a good day overall, and it included leading the team in digs with 12. Raegan Sweeney was next best with three.

Cadogan, Brunetto and Julia Wilson each blocked a shot. Wilson led the team with three assists.

Bond had six digs to round out her fine overall game.

The match on Tuesday played out similarly against Lexington, as the Wildcats were highly competitive in the first set before the Minutemaids proved too tough in a 27-25 game victory.

It only got worse from there, with Lexington winning the next game 25-10 and 25-14.

Maeve Cadogan led Wilmington with five kills, followed close behind by sophomore Kylie DuCharme, who had four.

Cadogan also had two service aces to go along with the kills, as well as a block.

Brittany Cimaglia made her presence felt with a dozen assists, six digs and a team-high three service aces.

In addition to Cadogan, Gabby Bond and Julia Wilson each had a block. Anna Rideout contributed in this match with six digs, tying Cimaglia for the team lead in the category.

The Wildcats may get pushed to the brink this week as they face Melrose on Friday (7 p.m.) at home and then travel to Burlington on Tuesday. The Lady Red Raiders and the Lady Devils won the first meetings and they both have consistent programs who have always given Wilmington trouble in the past.

'Cats defeated on the court by two large school division teams

WILMINGTON - With an eye on the future, the Wilmington High girls' volleyball team had targeted this week's two games as opportunities to secure its position in the postseason.

The Wildcats have five wins to this point, and fortunately, they face those five same teams to end the regular season.

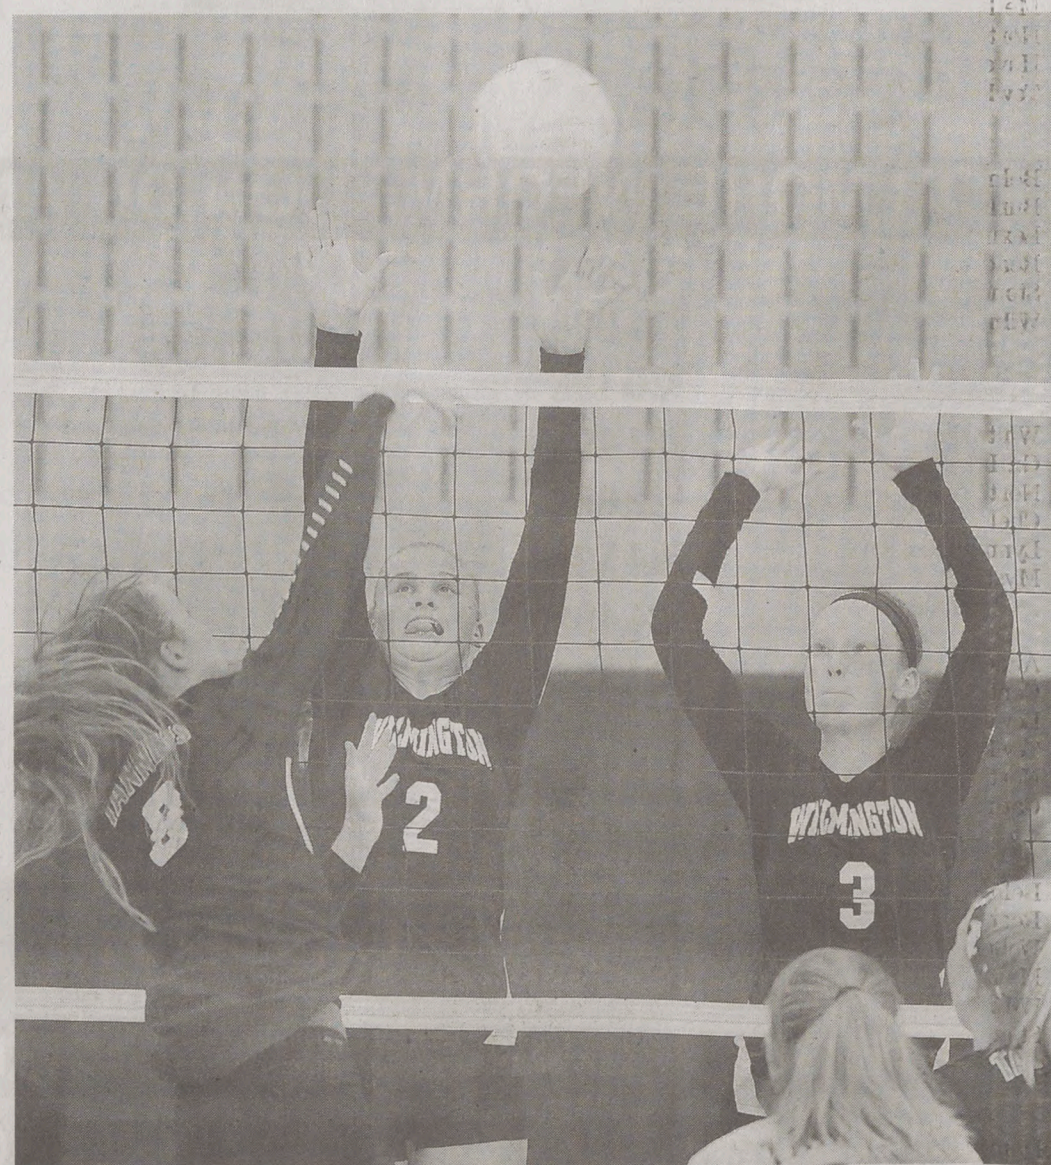

Since there are no guarantees Wilmington will go 5-0 again in that stretch, the Wildcats were hoping to get some insurance this week.

Instead, Arlington and Lexington proved to be typical of the strong programs in Middlesex League Liberty.

The Spy Ponders and Minutemaids both won their matches, 3-0, giving Wilmington an 0-6 record against ML Liberty opponents this season.

The games scores against Arlington were, 25-21, 25-12, 25-14. The game scores for Lexington were, 27-25, 25-10, 25-14.

Having gone winless against ML Liberty, the Wildcats now return to ML Freedom competition with a 5-8 record. They need to win five of their last seven

Boys run away with a win, girls edged out by Stoneham

ML Cross-Country Meet

By JAMIE POTE

STONEHAM - After both teams started out 0-2 before picking up their first wins of the season last week, the Wilmington High School Boys' and Girls' Cross-Country teams competed in another Middlesex League Freedom Division Meet held Tuesday afternoon at the 2.8 mile course in Stoneham. The boys came away with a 26-33 victory to even their record to 2-2 but the girls were defeated 19-43 to fall to 1-3 on the season.

"Unfortunately the overall results for both teams weren't exactly the outcomes we were looking for," said head coach Brian Schell. "Unlike in track, cross-country at times has that 'home course advantage' and Stoneham definitely had it. We knew their course is a tough course and does not have ideal terrain and can be dangerous. It consists of trails through the woods with giant rocks and tree stumps just about every inch to maneuver around. It also has a steep hill that even feels like you are rock climbing and unfortunately there is no way to prepare for it."

"For both teams coming into the meet, I stressed that overall time is not at all important in this meet. It was about racing smart and more importantly trying to get out unscathed."

The boys team ended up with seven runners in the top ten including five of the top eight which gave the team the victory. Ben Packer was second overall at 16:21 and was followed by Kevin Elderd (3rd, 16:37), Will Doucette (6th, 16:47), Joe Lydon (7th, 17:13), Jake Danieli (8th, 17:31), Nolan Kennedy (9th, 17:34) and Tom Goodwin (10th, 17:35).

"The boys score was a lot closer than it should have been and the home course advantage clearly played the biggest role in the girls race," said Schell. "You can clearly tell that most everyone struggled with the terrain and unfortunately some were hindered by the rocks and rolled their ankles." In the girls' race, the Wildcats had three of the top ten including Gianna Misuraca, who was second overall at 21:28. She was followed by Hannah LaVita (8th, 23:16), Carissa Rubin (10th, 23:37), Angie Ciampa (11th, 23:43), Olivia Erler (13th, 23:55), Amie Russell (14th, 24:21) and Allie Jordan (15th, 24:23). "Overall, we need to put this one behind us and get ready for Burlington at home. Being our last meet on our home course it will definitely be one to get back into what we are better at and bring it to them," said Schell.

Shawsheen Tech Sports Round-Up

Rams pick up three wins on the links

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com

The Shawsheen Tech Golf team picked up three more CAC wins this past week, and in the process they carried on a tradition that is nearly as old as some of the top players on the team, as the sophomore laden group clinched at least a share of their 14th consecutive league crown.

With wins over Northeast Metro Tech last Tuesday, Essex Tech last Friday and Greater Lowell on Tuesday, the Rams improved to 9-2 overall and 9-0 in the CAC, with their only remaining league match coming up next Tuesday against Essex Tech. The Rams win over Essex on Friday handed the Hawks their only league loss of the season, and another win on Tuesday will clinch the title outright for the Rams. An Essex win would mean the two teams would share the title for the second consecutive season.

"We are very happy to have clinched at least a share of the league championship, but we are hoping to get a win next against them the next time out have it to ourselves," Shawsheen coach Tom Struthers said.

The rematch with Essex will be at the Hawks home course at Reed Meadows in Lynnfield. The Rams certainly took full advantage of their home course advantage in their match on Friday, as the Hawks had a difficult time adjusting to Patriot Golf Course in Bedford.

"We really didn't play one of our best rounds against them, but we played very well as a team," Struthers said. "Reedy Meadows is a very wide open course, and our course is definitely not like that. They came over here and they had a hard time with it. I tell our kids all the time, that when they shoot a good score at our course they are definitely doing something because it is not easy."

Playing well for the Rams on this day were sophomore Sean Murphy of Tewksbury, who shot a 41 from the number three position, as well as junior Brady McFadden of Tewksbury, who continued his strong play of late by shooting a 43.

"Sean is just a steady, steady number three player for us. He doesn't come in with a score over 45 and he played very well in this match," Struthers said. "Brady has been a little inconsistent, where sometimes he will shoot a 47 or 48 and sometimes it will be a 41 or 42. But lately he has been playing his best golf of the season. He is just a relaxed, easy going kid. He has some great talent, he just needs to stay consistent."

The Rams had started their week last Tuesday with a 121-98 win over Northeast Metro Tech last Tuesday at Hillview Country Club.

"That was a good match for us," Struthers said. "For our sophomores it was their first time ever playing at Hillview, and any time you go to a course you have never played before you are always concerned, but we ended up playing very well."

Playing particularly well for the Rams was senior captain and number one player Cam LeRoux, who shot a 41, along with sophomore Aidan Sullivan, who matched LeRoux with a 41 of his own.

"Aidan is another just steady, steady player," Struthers said. "He didn't make the team last year because of all the seniors we had, but he practiced and practiced and just kept getting better, and now he is our number two player."

The other sophomores, DJ Ducharme (41), Murphy (43) and Connor Preble of Tewksbury (42) also played well in the victory.

Shawsheen wrapped up their week with a 103-43 win over Greater Lowell back at Patriot. The Rams were led in this one by newcomer, junior Harry Williams who shot a 43.

"It was so great to see him do that," Struthers said. "He is a kid who really hasn't shot under a 50 and he did a great job today. He was so excited and we were so excited for him. That is what it's all about."

Shawsheen will be back in action, weather permitting, on Thursday afternoon at the state vocational championship, which was originally scheduled for last Wednesday, but was postponed due to rain.

BOYS SOCCER

The Shawsheen Tech Boys Soccer team qualified for the state tournament last season on the final day of the season, coming up with a clutch win to secure their spot. There will be not such dramatics necessary this season, as the Rams clinched their spot in the post season this past week, going 2-0-1 on the week to improve to 8-3-1.

The Rams qualified for the state tournament with a 2-0 win on the road against a tough Greater Lowell team. Gavin Pigott gave the Rams the lead in the first half with a 25-yard direct kick. Shawsheen recorded the insurance goal with ten minutes to play when Jason Myers brought the ball down the left side and made the cross to Jared Rizzo of Wilmington whose point blank shot found the back of the net. Shawsheen goalie Mike Reppucci of Tewksbury recorded his sixth shutout of the season. Playing well for Shawsheen were Tyler Archibald, Devin Almeida, Matt Pustizzi and Joe Hansen.

Prior to the win over Greater Lowell, the Rams had fought to an impressive 1-1 tie with non-league rival Bedford in the final event of Homecoming weekend at Shawsheen. Dual County League power Bedford drew first blood scoring three minutes into the game. Shawsheen then buckled down defensively and the game remained that way until the last minute. That's when Rizzo got the equalizer on a breakaway started with a lead pass from Elias Flaounas. Also playing well for Shawsheen were Hansen, Pustizzi, Jose Cruz and Reppucci in net.

The Rams had started the week with a 2-1 thriller over Mystic Valley. Mystic Valley came into the game 7-1-1 and Shawsheen knew that would have to play a near perfect game to come away with the win on the road, and they did just that.

Shawsheen took the lead late in the first half when Tyler Archibald slammed home the rebound of Jason Myers shot. Mystic Valley evened the score at 1-1 midway through the second half when they took advantage of an opportunity created because of a miscommunication in the Rams back line.

Shawsheen refused to be denied however and as play seasawed back and forth the Rams mounted an attack that led to a corner kick with five minutes remaining in the game. Rizzo pounced on Pigott's perfectly placed corner and deposited it in the back of the net for the winner.

Pustizzi, Jeremy Perez,

Hansen and Reppucci all played well for the Rams.

Shawsheen will be back in action on Thursday when the host Chelsea High School, before they travel to Lynn Tech next Tuesday.

CROSS-COUNTRY

Both Shawsheen Tech Cross Country teams continued their outstanding seasons this past Wednesday at Notre Dame in Tyngsboro, with the Girls sweeping a tri-meet against Notre Dame and Nashoba Tech to improve to 7-0 on the season, while the Boys knocked off Nashoba Tech in a dual meet to improve to 5-1.

On the Girls side the Lady Rams knocked off Nashoba Tech by a score of 15-50, while beating Notre Dame 20-41. Senior captain Ivana Wisky of Tewksbury led the way for the Lady Rams, taking first place overall while sophomore Rachael Halas was second. Sophomore Susanna Gillis took third place against Nashoba and fourth against Notre Dame, followed by sophomore Jenna Johnson, senior Emily Morris and senior Hayleigh Perry of Tewksbury.

On the Boys side, the Rams rolled to a 22-37 win over Nashoba Tech, with senior captain Ryan Smith leading the way, followed by sophomore Alex Smith in third place and senior Steve Basler of Tewksbury in fourth. Following close behind for the Rams were sophomore Dan Lee of Tewksbury, sophomore Matt Hemenway, senior Jonny Pilla and senior Kyle MacDonald.

Both the boys and girls teams were back in action on Wednesday afternoon in a tri-meet at Shawsheen against Greater Lawrence and Whittier Tech, with the results unavailable as of press time.

GIRLS SOCCER

The Shawsheen Girls Soccer team earned a 3-1 home win over Greater Lowell on Tuesday, improving their record to 5-6 overall, while bouncing back nicely from a tough 6-1 loss to Bedford on Saturday.

Shawsheen senior forward and captain Shannon Fitzgerald led the way offensively for the Lady scoring two goals, while fellow senior captain and midfielder Monique Kazelyan had the other goal.

Sophomore forwards Jess Scholl of Tewksbury and Maya DiMino, along with senior captain and forward Megan Brown each chipped in with assists, while sophomore goalie Shelby Boudreau made six saves to earn the victory.

Also playing well for Shawsheen were sophomore midfielders Talia Steed, Wilmington and Jacquie Megna and senior captain and midfielder Rebecca Smith of Tewksbury.

Rams fall in OT; suffer first league loss since 2016

BILLERICA - It's somewhat of an overused cliché after a great, hard fought game to say that it's a shame that somebody had to lose. But that cliché certainly seemed to apply to last Friday night's CAC Large School Division showdown between Shawsheen Tech and Essex Tech at the Charles H. Lyons Athletic Complex, when Essex came away with a thrilling 32-24 overtime victory over the Rams, handing the defending CAC champion Rams their first league loss since 2016.

This was a game that had a bit of everything. Great catches, dropped passes, perfectly executed plays, plays you wish you could have back, not to mention a pair of great comebacks, one by each team, and each in the final minute and a half of regulation.

But in the end, all that mattered was that Essex had scored the only touchdown of overtime, and had come away with the victory, dropping Shawsheen to 3-2 on the season (1-1 in the CAC), while Essex improved to 2-2 (1-1).

"It came down to a couple of plays here and there and they just made more of them," Shawsheen coach Al Costabile said. "They made more plays and they deserved to win. We battled hard and battled to the end, but they came up with a couple more plays than we did and that was the difference."

Tied 24-24 at the end of regulation, Essex scored the game winning touchdown two plays into overtime when senior Ben Condon scored on a four yard touchdown run, followed by a two-point conversion pass from quarterback Vincent Brazzo to Hunter Lane.

Shawsheen then had their chance from the ten-yard line, but were unable to convert. Their first three plays went nowhere actually moving backward, but on fourth down from the 11-yard line, senior quarterback CJ Zemetres' of Tewksbury came ever so close to pulling the Rams even, as his pass to the back of the end zone was broken up when the Essex defender knocked the ball out the Shawsheen receiver's hands at the last instant to preserve the victory.

Moments earlier it looked like the Rams were going to pull out a dramatic come from behind victory. Trailing 24-18 after an Essex touchdown, the Rams took over at their own 48-yard line with 1:19 left in the game and proceeded to go on their most clutch drive of the season to tie the score.

Zemetres (225 yards, 3 touchdowns) completed four passes for 41 yards on the drive, with the biggest play coming on 15-yard completion to Ryan Quinones (4 catches, 113 yards) along the sideline to give the Rams a first down at the Essex 31-yard line. He followed that up with a 24-yard completion to Josiah Martinez (5 catches, 51 yards) of Wilmington down to the seven yard line with 22 seconds left.

Two plays later he connected with Martinez in the front corner of the end zone for a five-yard touchdown pass with ten seconds left in regulation to tie the game, Martinez, second touchdown catch of the game. The extra point attempt failed however, keeping the score tied and sending the teams to overtime.

Shawsheen had trailed 17-12 at halftime and the score had remained the same at the end of the third quarter. But they came back to take the lead early in the fourth quarter, going on a 12-play, 75-yard drive, capped off by a four yard pass from Zemetres to Quinones to give them an 18-17 lead. The Rams two point conversion attempt failed and they maintained their slim one point lead with 7:41 left in the game.

After the team exchanged non-scoring drives, Essex would come back with a clutch drive of their own, taking over possession with 4:14 left in the game and proceeding to go on an eight play, 62-yard drive capped off by a six yard run by Hunter Lane to make the score 24-18 with 1:24 left in the game, setting up the Rams for their dramatic game tying drive.

In the first half, Shawsheen had scored on a 55-yard pass from Zemetres to Quinones in the first quarter and on a three yard touchdown run by senior running back Stephan Saint-Juste in the second quarter, missing the extra point attempt after each score, including a two point conversion attempt after the second touchdown.

Both touchdowns came on tremendous individual efforts with Quinones (4 catches, 113 yards) hauling in Zemetres pass along the sideline at Essex' 20-yard line and making a great move to elude the Essex defender on his way to the end zone.

Saint-Juste meanwhile had one of the more spectacular three yard runs you will ever see, changing directions on a sweep play and weaving his way through defenders into the end zone.

Shawsheen will be back in action this Friday night when they host Northeast Metro Tech in another CAC Large clash.

"We showed some great resilience bouncing back and sending the game into overtime the way we did," Costabile said. "We played a great second half defensively. This is a tough one to move on from, but you've got to go in there with that in mind."

Pop Warner C Team comes away with another dominating victory

The Wildcats Pop Warner C Team traveled to Lawrence, banged up with injuries and shorthanded but still managed a convincing win 27-0 this past Sunday.

Taking the ball on the initial kick off the Cats wasted no time and came out in their no huddle offense pounding the ball. Both Ryan Copson and Zack Timmons alternated with carries of 8-to-10 yards on each of the first five plays.

Driving straight down to the six-yard line, Copson found the end zone behind solid blocking from Cam Kelly at fullback and the stellar line play of Pat Lee, Kyle Gabaree, Will Trach, Cullen Walsh, Collin Brown, Ben Gibbons and Trent Wedge. Zack Timmons then punted into the endzone to make it 7-0 on the opening drive.

After a short kick return Lawrence came out on offense and what would be story the rest of the day, was unable to move the ball at all. Big plays on defense from Collin Brown and Cullen Walsh on the line stuffed the offense. Lawrence was unable to throw the ball with great coverage from Jacob Britenback, Aiden Burke and Kenny Branley.

Wilmington took over on a punt down to their own 30 and proceeded to march 70 yards for another score. Big runs from Copson, Kelly and Timmons kept the drive moving and two short yardage quarterback sneaks by Shane Maguire each gained over five yards for first downs.

With the ball inside the 10, Timmons took it off tackle and scored to make it 13-0. On the extra point Maguire faked to Copson and found tight end Ben Gibbons all alone in the endzone for a nice play action pass and the extra point. On the drive there were great blocks from Luke Abbott, Jacob Doucette and Geoffrey Cavanaugh.

Lawrence got the ball back and with no success on the ground went to the air. Zack Timmons, (who played tackle, running back, inside and outside linebacker and center), stepped in front of the intended receiver for an excellent interception. The half ran out with Wilmington up 13-0.

The second half results saw no change except Wilmington's defense even more stingy than the first half. Kelly, Timmons, Gibbons, Wedge, Walsh and Brown were all immense in shutting down Lawrence which never was a threat to score.

After getting the ball right back in the third quarter, Copson was running all over with gains of 15 and 12 and 10 and Timmons again with carries of eight and six yards bringing the ball down to the 8 yard line where Copson ran in untouched to extend the lead to 20-0.

After another three-and-out, the 'Cats found themselves driving again. This time it was quarterback Shane Maguire running the ball. First on a broken play Maguire ran 20 yards down the sideline. Then on 3rd-and-short Maguire broke a 17-yarder on a sneak up the middle. Maguire again ran five yards to the one-yard line where on the next play took it in for another Wilmington touchdown.

Pat Lee, Will Trach, Noah Matton and Kyle Gabaree all blocked excellent up the middle. On the extra point Copson went around right end following Will Trach who pulled around with an excellent lead block to score the extra point to close out the scoring at 27-0.
